THE CHINA MAIL

HONGKONG, SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1886

THERE GOES TO THE

of a good many people that the principles upon which a newspaper should be conducted include the occasional sacrifice of independence on the part of its conductors; or, to be more exact, that they should consent to solicitations from p sons who, having offended against the law, are desirous that the fact should not receive the publicity which only a newspaper can give. The form of appeal is usually this: "I shall feel much obliged if you will leave out that case of mine."

It can do no good to publish it. It would be really quite an accident, and if the thing gets into the papers, really, you know it will do me a great deal of harm," said so on.

Now the proper answer to this kind of request is, in the majority of such cases, cations that the newspaper is under obligation to the public which cannot be disregarded with impunity. While the right of its conductors to insert or omit any particulars of News or Commerce they see fit cannot (subject to the law libel) be questioned by any one, there is an unwritten code which, if they would see their journal flourish, they must respect and obey. Recent rulings of the most eminent legal authorities have clearly evidenced the improvement in position, to which journals have attained since the days of our grandfathers. The chief of these is found in the expression ence of his learned brethren, has gone far as to describe the columns of a new paper as, a sort of informal court, which its conductors have a right criticize even his and their acts, and words so long as such criticisms are bona fide for the public good. And this right of a free press has increased so has its accompanying obligation to honestly and fearlessly discharge its functions, without fear, favour, or affection. The public have a right to be informed of all proceedings that occur in law courts so far as they are of public importance, especially when injury to life, character, or property is involved.

in this respect a newspaper may be to be the property of the highest legal tribunal to which the public in their own right have the privilege of voluntary contribution is justifiable inasmuch as it is much more so in the communities. In smaller the number of the greater becomes responsibility of the journal, and this publication of a report and socially affects. Doubtless the police paper frequently inflicts by the publicity the doing, that the sentence and it is this consideration, urged to induce a report. People who asking a merchant if set of books, feel no summing that a request falsify the record either by omission or

Now as we have a cations to suppress upon the conduct of are sufficiently numerous source of much trouble journalists both at Colonias. Not merely violate their faith to porters, but if the supplied with another which readers may aware. We will cease to illustrate and O. are, we will individuals, one of whose offence which leads apprehension being being retained as a case comes before a will also suppose, did not without punishment offence by which most endangered, is fully prompted of A. will live in a provincial rush to the offices of and make the request above. The usual supplemented by of affect a generous mind man—his first escape upon him who was from exposure—and trade has dismissed. This sort of pressure and the offender no punishment whatever having consented to report, discredits mentioning on the weak trade who did not visit the punishment it is extent, therefore—and extent—the public complaint against the imitated the weakness.

Our readers will remember what we have set speaking of a practice falls within our own our fellow journalists our own feelings all requests would be of.
